

Matthew Addison

Matthew started StepLadder in 2016 to make a lasting positive social impact through collaborative finance, which he studied with Lauder in Brazil. Since 2019 launch, Matthew and his co-founder Lucy have built, tested and scaled a multi award-winning proprietary platform in the UK establishing a deep IP moat and growing 40% quarter on quarter for the last 4 years. Today Circles powered by StepLadder are going global. They are already working with top-tier institutions like Itau (Brazil's #1 bank) and growing ARR 300% from '22.

Matthew has spent nearly 20 years in finance and investments at firms including Goldman Sachs and Cheyne Capital, where he was made partner in 2007. He started his first tech business, Level Access, while still a student at Stanford in 1999.
